

Prof. Yohei Endo

Yohei ENDO is an associate professor at Shinshu University Faculty of Engineering. His main interests and research areas include structure engineering and earthquake engineering, conservation of historical structures; seismic assessment; masonry buildings; numerical analysis; life-cycle assessment; material characterization tests; shaking-table tests; townscape analysis; disaster risk reduction.

To date, he is the (co-)author of more than 30 scientific articles published in international journals and conferences, books, lecture and has been involved in more than 4 scientific (research and technical) projects.